Plant : Hello animal! How are you? Are you looking for me?

Animal: Oh, yes! I'm looking for your friends. I am hungry.

Plant : So, without us you can't live, can you?

Animal: Don't say such things. We need each other.

I eat you and your friends. Later, I excrete waste.

This waste acts as fertiliser for you to grow too.

Plant : Yes, I agree, but you are all lucky. You can move around to look for food. We are stuck to where we are.

Animal: You must be happy that you can make your own food. I will not move around if I can make my own food. Do you know that some of your friends live very much longer than us.

Plant : Yes, I agree, but these humans are making our life shorter every day.

Animal: Not only you. They have even reduced members of my 'kingdom'.

Plant : Looks like both of us have the same enemy.

16. All the statements below are incorrect except

On 21 July 1969, an interesting event happened. A human being from our planet set foot on another world. Yes, Neil Armstrong, an American astronaut, stepped out from an Apollo spacecraft on to the surface of the moon. Man at last achieved what he had dreamed of for so long. He had travelled in space to another world.

Before the year 1900, man could not even fly at all, except the balloons and gliders with the help of wind. But today they can fly 384 000 kilometres to the moon and back again safely.

Today Man are trying something else. They would like to promote 'space visits' whereby any person who is capable of paying will make a trip to the outer space and visit the moon or even the Mars one day.

19. How did man fly before the year 1900?
- A They used wind-aided balloons and gliders.
  - B They used rockets and space shuttles.
  - C They used aeroplanes and helicopters.
  - D They used jets and rockets.
20. What are Man's future space plans?
- A To fight aliens on the Mars.
  - B To send animals to the moon.
  - C To build houses on the moon for the rich.
  - D To provide 'space tours' to ordinary people.

Question 22

One hot summer, a fox wandered into an abandoned garden. Before he knew what was happening, he had tumbled into an old, deep well. There was not much water in the well, so the fox was quite safe at the bottom, but the sides were smooth and straight. The fox soon realised that he could not climb out. The fox was beginning to think that he would never escape, when a goat face looked over the wall.

"Hello down there!" boomed a voice," said the goat.

The cunning fox at once saw his chance,

"My friend," he called, "Come and share this lovely water with me!"

So the silly goat jumped into the well and drank the water. But before long, even the goat began to wonder how they would get out.

"Easy, my friend," said the fox. "Put your front feet as high up the wall as you can. I'll climb onto your back and jump to the top. Then I'll help you."

The goat did as the fox said. In seconds, the fox was out of the well and ran away. The poor goat was stuck there.
